Puppeteering Multi-Operator Figures - in person

Puppeteer and movement director Kate Brehm is leading an in person workshop on collective puppet manipulation techniques for bunraku-style, multi-operator puppets on July 9 and 10 in Brooklyn. Students will work on their feet to explore the relationship between breath and movement, techniques for leading and creative following, and communicating within a puppet trio. We'll use simple objects as well as cardboard figurative puppets. No puppetry experience required. Please wear clothes you can move in and be ready to work in bare feet.

Saturday July 9th and Sunday July 10th, 1:00pm-4:00pm
in Williamsburg, Brooklyn. $120 per person.

Performing the Tabletop - online

In this online puppet devising course, we explore the storytelling capacity of a tabletop. We'll consider the affective qualities of shapes in a space and the dramaturgical significance of edges and centers. With the puppetry essentials of eyes, breath, and transformation we create dynamic relationships between animate and inanimate performers. Finally we ask, where and who is the puppeteer?

Taught by puppeteer and movement director, Kate Brehm, this course requires no previous experience. You will, however, need, in addition to internet access, a small table or rigid board, paper, tape, cardboard or foam core, and some simple objects.

Wednesday July 20th,
Thursday July 21st, 6:30-8:30pm EST
Saturday July 23rd, 4:00-6:00pm EST
Online $120 per person.
